Inteck's Services focus Electronic Medical Record Adoption by Healthcare Professionals

DENVER, COLORADO, November 7, 2007. Inteck, an information technology (IT) consulting firm for the healthcare industry, enhances its Electronic Medical Record (EMR) support program with the appointment of Steven B. Deitch, M.D., Director, Medical Informatics to work with physicians and nurses.

With the increasing emphasis on physicians using an EMR, Inteck has enhanced its program to provide support to a hospital's medical staff with the education and technical expertise, which will result in a successful adoption and implementation. Unlike other computerization projects, implementation of an EMR is more complicated because it requires the involvement of everyone associated with the hospital from physicians to board members.

Dr. Deitch specializes in assisting hospitals assess the organizational and technological readiness of implementing an EMR solution. This initiative not only affects the workflow processes of all caregivers but also requires interoperability between a variety of systems to provide caregivers with all of the patient information required to administer care.

By listening to and understanding the needs and issues of healthcare professionals, Inteck will develop and implement a plan to help your medical staff embrace technology. Implementation of these initiatives should be led by experienced, senior level personnel who have been through similar implementations. Dr. Deitch understands the process and technology changes that take place, and can manage the human aspect of change management that is the inevitable result of such new and exciting IT initiatives.
